Unions give back to build Fort McMurray

The GPMC and its member unions have made a million-dollar commitment to the community of Fort McMurray and the community's Northern Lights Health Foundation.

The second of three installments of the $1 million donation was made June 24, coinciding with the GPMC's annual meeting.

“Our ongoing commitment to the Northern Lights Health Foundation shows the determination of our members to give something back to a great community that has sheltered and sustained us in our work,” commented GPMC Vice Chair Jack White.

“We've received top-notch care and service from the Northern Lights Regional Health Centre and we're pleased to help support its continuing work.”

“We are incredibly grateful to receive a $1 million commitment from the GPMC in support of health care in our region,” said Susanne Chaffey, Executive Director of the Health Foundation.

“Their support of the Health Foundation's unrestricted fund allows our organization to respond to our region's most critical health care needs, positively impacting countless patients receiving care in our community.”
